LET US REPAY OUR DEBT FOR BLOOD SPILLED ON KOREAN HILLS

"Where," George Washington once asked, "is the man to be found who wishes to remain indebted for the defense of his own person and property to the exertion, the bravery and the blood of others, without making generous effort to repay the debt of honor and gratitude?"

That's a question every person should ask himself every day his country is engaged in any war. Particularly is it a question to be asked in this time of the "forgotten war" in Korea.

The Korean war is a brutal, bloody business, but because it has been limited in scope, civilians here at home have suffered nothing worth mentioning in the way of material deprivation. Have you ever, during the course of the Korean war, asked for something at a store only to be told by the clerk, "Don't you know there's a war on?"

Too many of us are unaware or forgetful of the terrible things our young fighting men are going through on the shell-ripped Korean hills. We need to be reminded.

Such a reminder comes from the Department of Defense, the Red Cross and the Federal Civil Defense Administration. They are the organizations operating the National Blood Program for the benefit of our war wounded, the sick and injured civilians here at home, and to build a plasma reserve for use in event of a future national emergency.

The National Blood Program knows better than any of us the value of blood in treating the sick and injured. Because of this we should heed its plea that the American people become not just one-shot donors but "regular" givers—regular like paying the rent or mowing the yard. Regular like going to the movies every couple of weeks or playing golf every Saturday.

For remember there are a bunch of guys in Korea who would give their imperiled necks to be home paying the rent or mowing the yard. To say nothing of playing golf or taking their girls to the movies.

George Washington didn't know a blood transfusion from a cherry tree. But when he mentioned "the blood of others" as a thing we should not remain indebted for, he seems almost to have been speaking with foreknowledge of these autumn days in 1952.

Nixon Places His Case Before American People

MISSOULA, Mont. (AP)—Sen. Richard M. Nixon put his case before a nationwide audience Tuesday night and then speedily returned to his vigorous campaigning through the West today while awaiting plans for a decisive meeting with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

The Republican vice presidential nominee arrived in Missoula early today after carrying his fight for political life to the nation in Los Angeles last night.

His aides said he had not yet received further word from Eisenhower, the GOP presidential nominee, on the general's request for an immediate meeting. Nixon said that until the time for the meeting is set he will continue with his regular schedule of appearances in Montana, Wyoming and South Dakota.

The young GOP vice presidential nominee rested his fate in an unprecedented TV-radio appeal to the American public. He left the question of his removal from the Republican ticket squarely up to the party's national committee.

Nixon said he plans to meet Gen. Eisenhower "somewhere in West Virginia." The time and place probably will be set today after Nixon keeps his speaking appointment in Missoula, Mont. Nixon interrupted his Western campaign tour to return to Los Angeles and make his plea to the nation.

Ike, in a telegram from Cleveland, after Nixon's speech, labeled it "magnificent" and asked to see his running mate "at once."

A flood of telegrams and phone calls followed Nixon's dramatic offer to submit the make-or-break decision to the national committee.

"Write and write the Republican national committee whether you think I should stay or whether I should get off," Nixon exhorted, "and whatever their decision is, I will abide by it."

The appeal came after Nixon, the young man who zoomed to prominence in a short six years, said "not one cent of the $18,000 supplemental expense fund raised by supporters here ever went to me for my personal use."

His wife, Italian-haired Patricia Nixon, appeared with him on the program carried on the network of 62 television and 750 radio stations at a cost estimated at more than $75,000 by GOP National Chairman Arthur Summerfield. The Republican national campaign committees paid it.

Nixon lauded Eisenhower as "the man to clean up" corruption and Communism. Later, at the airport before leaving for Missoula, he declared:

"What happens to me is not important; what happens to Patricia and our two youngsters is not important; what is important is what happens to our country. . . . What Gen. Eisenhower stands for is for the good of all Americans."

The NBC switchboard in Hollywood was jammed for 2½ hours, Billy Clevenger, chief operator, said. She said the vast majority of callers were pro-Nixon.

Nixon gave details of his own financial status and challenged his Democratic opponents, Gov. Adlai Stevenson and Sen. John J. Sparkman to do likewise. He hit Stevenson's reported fund for Illinois officials and Sparkman's employment of his wife.

He did not give the breakdown of expenditures of the controversial $18,235 fund in his talk. But he released an audit report from Price, Waterhouse and Co., accountants, showing:

Total disbursement of $18,235.72, of which $5,102.15 went to Nixon directly, $12,876.72 to persons other than Nixon, from Nov. 15, 1950, to Aug. 20, 1952. The balance remaining was given as $66.13.

The largest single item listed was $4,237.54 for engraving 16,500 Christmas cards in 1950 and 25,000 in 1951. Airline, auto and hotel bills for Mr. and Mrs. Nixon totaled $2,306.54.

The legality of the fund—which also included recording, postage, stationery and advertising expenses aggregating $5,000—was upheld by a Los Angeles legal firm engaged by Dana C. Smith, Pasadena attorney and fund trustee.

Sparkman Stumping in Minnesota

LUVERNE, Minn. (AP)—Sen. John J. Sparkman began a one-day quest for votes in Minnesota with a street corner speech in Luverne, set for 10:15 a. m. today.

The Democratic vice presidential nominee arrived 45 minutes earlier at Sioux Falls, S. D., by plane and arrived here by motorcade. Sparkman came here from Nebraska, where he spoke Tuesday night.

The Alabama senator was to spend most of his time at Worthington Turkey Day celebration, where a major talk was scheduled at 3 p. m. following the fete's annual parade. A press conference for rural editors preceded his talk.

Street appearances in Jackson, Fairmont and Blue Earth were on the program before Sparkman attends a banquet in his honor in the Eagles hall at Albert Lea. That affair, set for 6:30 p. m., is sponsored by Stevenson Sparkman volunteers.

Another major talk was slated before a Democratic-Farmer-Labor rally in Austin at 8:30 p. m. Sparkman was escorted here by South Dakota officers and his trip through southern Minnesota was to be paced by the State Highway Patrol.

UNPOPULAR UNIFORMS—Shelves of this West Berlin clothing store are filled with uniforms and accessories confiscated from East Berlin policemen who have deserted, and found sanctuary in the western sector of Berlin. Over 200 of the "People's Police" have managed to slip through checks in the "Iron Curtain," and desertions still continue.
