

WF Panel Gives Ideas To Rotarians

A panel of World Federalists gave views on world government Friday at Albert Lea Rotary club.

Pinn Nannestad, moderator, introduced each panel member and presented the opening and concluding remarks. Speakers were: Judge John F. D. Meighen, County Attorney Rudolph Hanson, Russell Sorenson and Maclay Lyon. The panel presented the same program at the Jan. 8 Lions club meeting.

"World Government" was the topic picked by Judge Meighen to open the discussion. He emphasized World Federalists believe in world government to stop aggression and to work toward world peace, but said this idea of world government isn't copyrighted by World Federalists.

Judge Meighen cited the last general conference of Methodist church delegates when a resolution was passed, adopting the objectives of World Federalists.

Points To UN Charter
He mentioned the United Nations charter review scheduled in 1955. If the review and amendments of the charter would come up for two-thirds approval and permanent members of the security council, he believes the 60 members will do something about it.

Mentioning the cost of World War II was nearly two trillion dollars, he read a paper written by Secretary of State Dulles where World Federalist objectives again were suggested as the answer to world peace.

Next speaker on the panel, Hanson said, "World peace is a subject of such vital importance that thoughts of everyone in the world should be focused on it."

Hanson listed a few well-known World Federalists, including Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas and Gov. Youngdahl. Answering the question, "Will World Government Cause the United States to Lose its Sovereignty?" Sorenson said, "Our cardinal sin as an organization (World Federalists) was that we wanted to give up the right to wage war. But how sovereign is our right to wage war?"

No Interference
In a world government such as the one proposed by the World Federalists, no country will be interfered with in government, economic system, flag, constitution or religious beliefs, he said. "Can World Government be Achieved?" Maclay Lyon, last member of the panel believes world peace is not inevitable "unless we destroy the planet in a burst of atomic insanity."

"Radio and planes have shrunk the world to a size that it can be governed," he said, adding he was interested in who would do the governing, that it would be the United Nations and not Soviet Russia.

"If we're going to do anything on world government," he said, "we've got to do a lot of thinking—about such things as the UN charter review and of the obligations we owe to our children and the future from the benefits we have received from the past."

David Head, January Junior Rotarian, reported on school activities. President Charles Dion presided over the meeting.

Need More Aides For Red Cross Work in County

Freeborn county chapter of American Red Cross urgently needs fifteen hostesses and staff aides, Mrs. Larry D. Neisess, service groups chairman, said, adding the next visit of the bloodmobile is only two weeks away.

Mrs. Marlys Stutelsberg, 525 Tri-angle Drive, will instruct fifteen and staff aides courses, beginning at 2 p. m. Feb. 2 at Interstate hall. Area women interested in either course are urged to contact the Red Cross office, telephone 4544.

Mrs. Stutelsberg, who majored in home economics when at the University of Minnesota, will offer the instruction soon enough to permit the women to assist as staff aides and in the canteen during the next bloodmobile stop, beginning Feb. 8. The 20-hour canteen course covers such topics as refreshments, sanitation, emergency meals and practice in food preparation.

Pen Racket Revealed by Newspaper

Last chapter in the fountain pen racket under the guise of National Kids' Day foundation, can be written since facts have been brought to light by the Wall Street Journal. Albert Lea Better Business association, while not positive of the questionable tactics being used in the unordered merchandise gimmick, repeatedly warned area residents.

The local Better Business bureau recently received a bulletin from the Los Angeles Better Business bureau, in which the whole story was presented.

The fountain pen deal was headed by Ralph Stoklin, former president of RKO Pictures, Dave F. Koolish and his father, the bulletin said. This trio has a long record of Federal Trade commission citations and Better Business complaints concerning their varied business activities in the past, generally raising money through unordered merchandise rackets. National Kids' Day "23 karat gold" fountain pens were sent to a national mailing list with the recipient urged to send in $1.50 for the pens as a donation "to help our nation's kids."

Better Business discovered the heavy contributions brought in $850,526 to the foundation, but at the same time mailings and opening the returns cost $652,585, leaving the foundation $1,958 poorer than it started.

"Jimmy Fidler has made all sorts of defending statements," the report continued, "and according to one report, said that the loss was merely a bookkeeping technicality."

Albert Lea Better Business wrote to Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas and Bing Crosby, who replied they had requested that their names be taken off the foundation's letter heads.

Give Awards At Freeborn FFA Rally

FREEBORN, (Special to The Tribune) — Special awards were given Wednesday night at Freeborn Future Farmers of America chapter's annual meeting in the basement of the Congregational church.

Lowell Schuster, president, presided over the banquet meeting. Curtis Nelson told about his trip to the National FFA convention in Kansas City, a trophy was presented to Richard Holland for raising the heaviest 56-day weight of a litter of pigs and Harold Knutson was honored for successful farming since he started FFA work and for receiving an American Farmer degree.

Gary Hanson welcomed the parents to the meeting and Arnold Peters gave the response.

Speakers included: Wayne Haglin, state FFA president, who talked on the co-operation of parents and sons; Wesley Crowe, who explained about the trophy that was presented to Holland; Supt. Clausen, Freeborn high school, who talked on successful farming.

Ray Johannsen reviewed the chapter's activities of the last year. Arden Deboer, district FFA president, and G. H. Cochran also spoke.

Ole Knutson and Ray Stalock were honorary farmers at the banquet. Lois Indrele was elected "Sweetheart of the Banquet." Entertainment was furnished by Curtis Hanson and his accordion.
