American Spy Bill Being Kept Secret Said Dirty Business

Washington, March 5 (AP)—The House Rules committee was urged today to hold talk down to a minimum when the House takes up a mysterious American spy bill which one member said involves somewhat "dirty business."

Among other things, the measure permits the highly secret Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) to offer sanctuary in this country to foreigners who may risk death to aid our agents. Up to 100 a year would be allowed to enter each year without regard to immigration laws.

The CIA also could train its agents in public or private institutions here or abroad, and arrange for their training by various associations, business firms, or armed services.

Members of the Armed Services committee went before the House Rules committee to seek clearance for the bill under procedure calling for only minimum discussion.
