SAD WEEK ON STOCK MART

Not Since May, 1947, Has General Price Level Been Lower

New York June 1 (AP)—This was a sad week for the stock market—the saddest since hist November, to be all stocks beted on the Exchange approamed the $2,000,000,000 mark.

Not since May, 1947, has the general price level been lower With only a little effort, for the palainer is enort, the market is in a position to fall to the inwest since

Three trace since 1945 the market has appreciated its present position on the price scale Each time the tide of seiling has been rolled back and prices rallied. These three approaches established what Wall Street econicians term a resistance point, because great resistance to further declines has developed in the past. For the market to break through this resistance point would be regard ed as a highly onimous portent regarding the future price trend. Hence the market is regarded now as being in extremely critical territory.

The market took the steepest since last Governber on Tuesday, Wall Street had an assortment of bearish news to work on and origes headed downward from the opening beli. The decline, though, pushed the price level rough a couple of other resistance points, previous lows established in February and November

The market's slide slowed on Wedneeday and on Thursday prices held their ground fairly well. On Friday a fresh sinking spell carried the morket down to a level exactly even with
