TIP O' THE MORNING: Cary Grant and Betsy Drake won't be back on the air with "The Blandings" this season. It's said the reason is largely that income taxes would take too big a bite of their salaries.

"The Halls of Ivy," the series which State Journal readers last year voted their favorite radio show, will return to the air Wednesday, Oct. 3, via NBC-WIBA. It will be heard weekly at 7 p. m.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Colman again will be heard as Pres. and Mrs. William Todhunter Hall. They spent the summer on the Italian Riviera with their 7-year-old daughter, Juliet.

Shy of crowds, they stayed most of the time at their villa at Portofino resting, swimming, and boating. Both Mr. and Mrs. Colman also did some writing. Red Skelton has a file of about 300,000 comic situations and jokes in his personal files, but he has his own favorites—the ones he considers sure-fire with any type of audience.

Asked to produce seven he considers his top favorites, Red came up with these:
 Number One—about the man who dashed into a hardware store and pounded on the counter and demanded in a loud voice: "Give me a mouse trap."

I've got to catch a bus." To which the clerk replied, "Sorry, sir, we don't have any that big."

Second concerns two drunks who are in a hospital, all banded up. Says the first, "What happened?" The second drunk replies, "Well, we were on the tenth floor and you opened the window and said you were going to fly around the block." To which the first drunk says, "Why didn't you stop me?" And the second drunk answers, "I thought you could make it!"

The third favorite story is about the fellow who had been out of work for ages and who finally got a job digging a grave. He was so happy about his job that he dug the hole ten feet deep, then discovered he couldn't get out. Around dusk, a drunk came staggering out of the hole, he peeked in. He asked, "For goodness sake, what are you doing down there?" To which the fellow in the hole replied, "Never mind what I'm doing down here. Get me out, I'm cold!"

To which the drunk answered, as he rapidly kicked dirt into the hole, "Well, no wonder, you damn fool, you ain't got any dirt over you!"

Number Four is about the fellow who was going to give his girl a book for her birthday, but she refused it because she already had one.

The Skelton fifth is the one about the artist who said: "Five thousand wouldn't buy that painting." To which a buyer answered, "I know. I'm one of the five thousand."

The sixth is in the form of dialogue and goes like this: Census taker: "Do you own your own home?" Man of the house: "Yes, Me and the Bank of America." Census taker: "What do you own a car?" Man of the house: "Yes, Me and the Bank of America." Census taker: "When did you first come to California?" Man of the house: "When I first heard of the Bank of America!"

The seventh favorite is about the heartbroken little boy who ran away from home to punish his parents. After circling the block four times, he was asked by a smiling policeman what he was doing. To which the little boy replied: "My mummy is too mean, so I'm running away and I'm never coming back." The policeman, still smiling, said, "I see. But why do you keep going around the block?" To which the little boy answered, with emphasis: "Well, I'm not allowed to cross the street!"

A portrait of Vivien Leigh, London by A. K. Lawrence, hangs in the Blue Veil as Hollywood will ever have, is presently toiling along the eastern seaboard (mostly around Portsmouth, N. H.) in "Walk East on Beacon St.," a Louis de Rochemont semi-documentary based on J. Edgar Hoover's expose of Communist infiltration here.

George Murphy, as good a "good-will ambassador" as Hollywood will ever have, is presently toiling along the eastern seaboard (mostly around Portsmouth, N. H.) in "Walk East on Beacon St.," a Louis de Rochemont semi-documentary based on J. Edgar Hoover's expose of Communist infiltration here.

George Murphy, as good a "good-will ambassador" as Hollywood will ever have, is presently toiling along the eastern seaboard (mostly around Portsmouth, N. H.) in "Walk East on Beacon St.," a Louis de Rochemont semi-documentary based on J. Edgar Hoover's expose of Communist infiltration here.
